Known to many as the Co-op Caesar, GEORGE METZGER'S greatest achievement in college was the winning of the A.M.S. presidency. Metzger, the Fabulous George, the sweatheart of the Sigma Pis and every girl on the row, accomplished some noteworthy deeds for Homecoming Week (he saw to it that no Trojan horsemen set ablaze the big bonfire prematurely), and War Board. Might be classified in the league of B.M.O.C.'s, if pal Les Frame would move over. George is probably the best bridge player in the locale for he surely knew how to sling the aces with pros like the Thetas and Alpha Chis.

Under the suave, expressive countenance lurks the manly flesh of LES FRAME who came back from the wars to find out how Westwood was getting along and found it wasn't. An old-line crewman, The Profile put his oar in the right places and landed up dictating to the leaders of the campus political machine. As a hobby he became busboy at the Kappa House during meal-time and chief date escort at night. After an age-old struggle he astounded the Sigma Nus by up and graduating, so now the boys are muttering, "we'll go on, somehow".

Ray Richards molded a strong line, that forced many an opposing team to "take to the air" to advance. Past All-American and Pro footballer, wrestler, and globe-trotter, Ray now devotes his time to befuddling the opposition with tricky defenses.

Master Minds

Never at home on weekends, traveling man "Cece" Hollingsworth spent his time scouting the opposition. On week days he could be found assisting the "goof" squad. Always in the best of condition, Cece was once even caught playing with the boys.

"Keeper of the Liniment" Elvin C. (Ducky) Drake beams one of his ever-present smiles on Don Malmberg. Enemy of sprains and charley-horses, Ducky saw to the well-being of his boys and was able to announce "no serious injuries" at the season's close.

Seldom, if ever before, has so much been heard about so few. The Sigma Pis remaining on campus went to town socially along the row, almost exclusively in the Alpha Chi house, and politically in the A.M.S. BMOG George Metzger snagged the presidency of the A.M.S. and became a permanent fixture in the Alpha Chi house and at the Glen. Glamour man Bill Noid on his brief return to U.C.L.A. with the advanced Corps, hung his pin on Mary Lou Smiley. Bob Hillen, former feshman crew coach, is notable for his "character". With the departure of the A.S.T.P. the Sigma Pi house was returned to its members, but due to some unfortunate circumstances the boys couldn't reopen. At the present time it looks like the house will go back to another oncoming army group. These Sigma Pis are friendly and full of fun and have made an indelible mark on the campus.

The Army R.O.T.C. was composed of men who had attended U.C.L.A. and who had had advanced military training in the R.O.T.C. on campus. In May of 1943 the unit left for Camp Roberts where seventeen weeks were spent in basic training. As soon as this phase of their training was completed, the group was sent back to U.C.L.A. where it was known as the A.S.T.P.-R.O.T.C. unit. Upon the completion of one more semester of advanced studies, the men were transferred to Fort Benning for OCS and received their commissions in June of 1944.
